Residents living in the street told the Star they were "horrified" by the incident. One lady, who did not want to be named, said: "It's crazy how one minute you're just hearing about these kind of things and the next they are happening on your doorstep." Another neighbour added: "I was really shocked. It's not every day you wake up to find police everywhere. I even had to ask some of them to move their cars so that I could get my children to school.'

However, one elderly householder said the incident came as no surprise to her.

"I've lived here most of my life and always see a lot of police cars in the area," she said. A 45-year-old man who was arrested at

I just want to know that dad is all right

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE daughter of a pensioner who has been missing for more than a year made an emotional plea this week for information about his whereabouts.

Peter Schofield (71), of Brockles Mead, Harlow, was last seen by a friend outside the Ladbrokes betting shop in the town centre on Thursday, May 20 last year.

The grandfather of four, who was said to be carrying food and a sleeping bag, has not been seen or heard from since.

Speaking at a press conference held at Harlow Police Station on Tuesday, Jane Mansfield said her father's disappearance had "crushed" the family.

"Everyone is really struggling," she said.
"It's a year on and we still have no idea what happened to him.

Dad was a very sociable person with lots of friends and family. I just can't imagine him wanting to go off and be on his own; it is not like him at all."

Jane, who said no money has been taken out of her father's bank account during the past 12 months, fears he may have done something "silly"

"It's the not knowing that is the hardest," she said. "You just wonder how he could have gone somewhere where he can't be found without any money, a passport or anything."

Mr Schofield, a man of routine who was nicknamed 'Peter Pan' by friends and family, regularly visited Ladbrokes and Yates's bar in the town centre as well as The Shark pub in Colt Hatch and The Phoenix pub in Hart Road.

Shortly before he went missing he apparently told friends that he was considering jumping off Southend pier.

Jane added: "I love him lots and miss him. If anyone has seen him or knows where he is, even if he doesn't want to be found, it would be wonderful just to know he is all right.

Chief Inspector Ben Hodder said that police investigating the disappearance had made extensive enquiries in both Harlow and Southend.

"For the past year we have done an extensive area search and followed up all leads on this case but have been unable to locate Mr Schofield," he said.

"For someone to completely disappear is a great concern. We never close the file of a missing person yet it is difficult for us to continue our investigations unless we receive some new information."

He added: "Peter is not in any trouble at all and we would urge him, or anyone with any information about him, to get in touch so we can make sure that he is safe and well."

Mr Schofield is described as white, 5ft 7ins tall, of a slight build with short dark brown hair and brown eyes. He is usually clean shaven and was last seen wearing a pale blue flat cap with the Tottenham Hotspur

Football Club logo and jeans.

He has tattoos of the words "love" and "hate" on his fingers and suits of cards on the backs of his hands.

Anyone with information regarding his whereabouts should contact Harlow CID on 0300 333 4444.

A NOVICE cyclist is planning to ride 147 miles in 10 hours to fund a potentially life-changing operation for his girlfriend who suffers from multiple sclerosis.

Telecoms engineer Grahame Gadd (37), pictured left, only started cycling in March this year, but plans to take on the challenge to raise some of the £8,500 needed for partner Yvonne Spence's

He said mother-of-two Yvonne (33), of Great Brays, Harlow, was hit hard when she was diagnosed with the condition 18 months ago.

"It is really scary to see someone you love suffering so much," said Grahame. 'Yvonne has always been a really active person. She used to sprint for Harlow and attended the gym three or four times a week.

"Then she suddenly went blind for 11 days and that is what led to the MS diagnosis.

normal life to being able to hardly do anything is just heart-breaking," said Grahame. "So when we heard about the operation we thought let's go for it and I decided to do the sponsored cycle."

The operation, a minor procedure, is for a condition called chronic cerebro-spinal venous insufficiency, where blood from the brain and spine has trouble returning to the heart.

Grahame, who will ride from his home in Redditch to Harlow, is currently cycling about 150 miles a week.

"Even though I didn't start cycling until recently I have put in the training and feel good about the ride," he said.

'The way I see it is that if Yvonne can put up with this condition every day, I can go through a bit of pain for her. It will be so worth it if the operation can help her get her life back on track.

He added: "I want to thank anyone who can spare a bit towards this cause or any local business who would be willing to back me. Any support is hugely appreciated."

Carolyn Gardiner, prosecuting, told the court that Githua was of previous good character.

Work starts at last on market revamp

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AFTER weeks of delays, work on a major revamp of Harlow's dilapidated Market Square is now under way . . . and could soon be followed by the renovation of the Harvey Centre.

Demolition crews moved into the area yesterday (Wednesday) to rip out the fixed market stalls.

Meanwhile, Harvey Centre owners Addington Capital announced plans for the mall including proposals for a major new department store.

The firm's announcement has prompted Harlow Council to hold back on advertising for a new development partner to oversee the regeneration of town centre north until late

The authority said the delay will allow time to ensure that proposals for the Harvey Centre – which incorporates retail units in West Gate, East Gate, Little Walk, East Walk, West Walk and parts of Broad Walk – complement improvements planned for the wider area.

Addington's plans include revamping existing shops and installing new lighting.

Russell Perrin, the council's portfolio holder for regeneration and enter-prise, said: "We believe the best way to deliver regeneration is to allow Addington a little time to firm up their plans so we can be sure the Stone Cross redevelopment blends perfectly with the revamped Harvey Centre."

Matthew Allen, of Addington

Capital, added: "By giving us the time to firm up our proposals, the council is creating an opportunity to improve the town's retail offer holistically and to make sure the whole town centre benefits from the changes we make."

Until then, the council will be focusing its efforts on the £150,000 renovation of Market Square, which is being funded by regeneration grants could be completed by mid-July.

The work will give the area a bright look with modern stalls, improved seating, a children's play area and new trees, with proposals for a large white wall or glass area in The Rows that could be used to project films or live television events.

Cllr Perrin added: "A market has always been a key feature of Harlow but there's a general recognition that it has struggled in recent times and needs an overhaul.

"We will replace the ageing metal stands with new stalls and make this an open plan area that people will want to spend time in and enjoy."
He added: "The council is committed to the renewal of Harlow and the work on the market area is the first phase of a number of our development

MP given a grilling at Lib Dem dinner

MEMBERS of the Harlow Liberal Democrat Party welcomed Cambridge MP Julian Huppert to their post-election dinner on Saturday.

Mr Huppert, pictured centre front row, who currently sits on the Home Affairs Select Committee, was guest of honour at the event held at the Park Inn Hotel in Southern Way.

Fielding questions from guests, he admitted the party had allowed its 'honeymoon period" in Parliament to drag on, agreed the U-turn on tuition fees was a mistake and said disappointing local election results meant it now had to reassess its strategy.

But he pointed out the Coalition Government had provided the opportunity for key Lib Dem policies to see the light of day, notably the party's promise to give tax concessions to the poorest.

Harlow Lib Dem councillor John Strachan said afterwards: "It was great to have Julian join us this year. He is a refreshingly candid, honest and down-to-earth politician and had a lot of interesting things to say.

"He didn't duck any of the difficult questions thrown at him and really listened to what local party members had to say."

Cycle track is incomplete

SIR, I read with interest your article about the opening of the new Southern Way cycle track (Star, June 9).

While I am very pleased to have this new section open and have already been using it, I was wondering when the council is going to complete the job?

The fact is that there are two missing sections approximately 300m between Aylets Field and the Latton Bush centre and another section in front of Staple Tye shopping centre.

If both were completed it would enable a cyclist to travel along the whole of Southern Way rather than experience a broken journey as it now stands after the improvements.

All the other main east-west avenues in Harlow can now be travelled in their entirety by a nearby off road or bus lane cycle track, so why not Southern Way?

> Graham Perry Morningtons, Harlow

Stick to the bike paths

SIR, It may seem to some that the town is now a "top spot for cyclists" but why spend all that money providing cycle paths only for the cyclists to use the roads.

Surely there must be a rule that if a cycle path is provided then it must be used. Many cyclists say that if they used the cycle paths, then every time they approach a side road they would have to keep stopping. This is not convenient.

Why has the county council spent hundreds of thousands of taxpayers' money providing a safe cycle path along First Avenue that runs from the town centre to The Stow and then erect signs stating that cyclists can use the bus lanes?

Am I missing something here? Surely a bus lane is designed to get passengers into town quickly by avoiding congestion. So why put a cyclist in the One last thing. I don't consider myself to be a moany old so-and-so but I have provided to the State satisfactory evidence that I am capable of using the roads in a safe manner. This was when I passed my driving test. I also provide insurance so that if I hurt or damage someone or something whilst using the road I can compensate them for their losses. And if this is done without my knowledge, then the number plate on my vehicle can be used to identify me.

What happens when a cyclists runs a red light or scratches their handlebars down the side of your car? I say that all road users without exception should pass a competence test and offer a minimal third party insurance.

diatribe regarding the Academy status of Passmores School (Letters,

He seems very miffed he was not consulted, but as a local councillor he knows full well that as Harlow is not a unitary authority it is little to do with him.

He says teaching unions are against it. Of course they would as representatives of the labour force, but those very same teachers have been anxious to wrestle control from local authorities and their bands of advisors for ages.

He quotes a MORI poll stating that parents want 'a good local school run by local authorities'. This is precisely what an Academy will give, but the authority will be very local, not in Chelmsford.

What Councillor Truan and his Labour colleagues overlook is that our local education authority allows elitist schools in Chelmsford Colchester and Southend with GCSE pass rates of 100 per cent. These are towns with populations

Bear in mind that their remaining comprehensives have GCSE pass rates of 60 per cent plus whilst our schools are lower than 50 per cent. Remove the Labour fudge of OCR ICT Nationals (get three GCSEs for searching the web) and they would be lucky to reach 30 per cent.

The lesson is ignored; selective schools force up the GCSE pass rate by showing what local children can achieve. For Councillor Truan and his acolytes to deny our children the opportunity of climbing to the very top of the tree is indefensible.

> Jim Pailing Chelsea Gardens, Harlow

SIR, Councillor Rod Truan does the many school governors in Harlow a serious injustice.

It appears that he thinks we are all niave – stupid even – and are being hoodwinked and misled into agreeing to Academy status for our willingly and voluntarily. Every decision we make is with the best interest of Harlow's children in mind; we want them to have the best start they can.

He says that he was not aware of the Passmores decision to become an Academy for five months. This suggests that perhaps he does not talk to the residents in his ward or perhaps they did not raise it with him as they did not actually view it as an issue.

In fact, the first letter went to Passmores' parents last summer and the decision was not actually taken until January this year, giving plenty of time for those with issues to raise them.

Michael Hardware, community governor Passmores School & Technology College

SIR, It was an honour to represent the teachers of Harlow and Epping Forest at the Anti-Academies Conference last weekend.

At the end I was just left with one question which remains governors of Passmores, Burnt Mill, Stewards and St Marks schools -why are they so keen to convert to Academy status when the move is condemned by the general secretaries of the National Union of Teachers, the Association of Teachers and Lecturers, the National Association of Headteachers and the National Association of Schoolmasters and Union of Women Teachers along with general secretaries of UCU, UNISON and UNITE?

All of these unions and associations with officials from the Local Schools Network and National Governors' Association spoke on the same platform and were united in opposition to Academies.

A real public debate is needed in Harlow before the people of the town accept the privatisation of education, creating non-accountable schools that could, in years to come, introduce selection and charge topup fees.

Expenses cut is a pittance

SIR, With reference to your report about councillors agreeing to cut their allowances (Star, June 2), it sounds quite a wonderful thing to do, I don't know how much their allowances - we call them expenses – are now, but the figures I have for the year ending March 31, 2009 for the six councillors in the report pictured totalled £36,442.70.

I assume with inflation, petrol and telephone calls going sky high, it's probably gone up by 10 per cent so what they are giving up is a pittance. Incidentally the figure that year for all councillors was just under £180,000. So this show of helping to reduce public spending is just a glorified publicity stunt.

Look for 'landmark' signs

SIR, I am writing to inform your readers of a new network of signs illustrating Harlow's historic landmarks which will begin to appear in approximately a weeks time.

A total of 15 monolith signs will be erected across the town, each carrying an image and some text about the area they mark.

The council is working hard to promote Harlow outside its boundaries to tourists and businesses looking to invest here. The idea of the new signs continues this work by showing visitors and residents that Harlow's claim to fame is not only

Historic areas of greater antiquity which will be celebrated include Potter Street (home to the pottery trade since Roman times), Netteswellbury (a parish that can trace its origins back to 1060) and Mulberry Green (a coaching inn stop on the 19th century London to Norwich coach route). Perhaps most intriguing of all is in Little Parndon at the corner of Hamstel and Hodings Roads where two benches were used in the 1960s as a contact point for a Russian spy and a serving RAF officer who sold secrets to the KGB.

Funding for the project came from central government. This was not a project solely of the council's making but was a collaboration between the council, Harlow Renaissance and Harlow Civic Society. I would like to publicly thank all those who have been involved in making it a

Counting down to the Midnight Walk

AFTER months of hard work and Marticulous planning, the organisers of Saturday's St Clare Hospice Midnight Walk in Harlow were this week putting the finishing touches to what promises to be a fun-packed night.

More than 1,200 people have signed up to take part in the Star-backed fundraiser – and more could still join in.

This year the St Clare fundraising team is offering people who haven't registered the chance to do so on the night. All you have to do is go to one of the registration desks with your £15 registration fee and you will be able to take part in the walk and receive a goody bag and T-shirt.

The Midnight Walk is one of the biggest fundraising events for St Clare. The money will go towards the £2.6m required each year to keep the hospice running.

St Clare provides services for patients aged 18 years and over with life-threatening or life-limiting illnesses, as well as offering care and support to families and friends.

The hospice receives only 24 per cent of its funding from the NHS, leaving it to raise more than £5,000 a day to keep going. That is why it is so important as many people possible take part in the Midnight Walk.

Event organiser Tracy Stratford said: "We would love to attract 1,500 people to this year's Midnight Walk and we are nearly there. For those of you who haven't done so, please help us reach this target."

Signing-in starts from 8.30pm with entertainment from Heart drive-time presenter Matt Mackay. This will be followed by a fun zumba warm-up courtesy of Julie Prickler at around 10 pm. There will also be face painters and the hospice

Petrol prices fuel Halfon's tax rebe

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon this week challenged the Government to drive down "artificially high" petrol and diesel costs to give cash-strapped motorists a fair deal on fuel.

On Tuesday the Conservative backbencher led a debate in the House of Commons on what he dubbed the "Great British petrol rip-

He called for planned rises in fuel duty to be scrapped and suggested that a new commission be set up to investigate why pump prices continue to rise despite the falling cost of

Mr Halfon, who has worked closely with pressure group FairFuel UK and former Top Gear presenter Quentin Wilson on a nationwide campaign against what they say are unfair pump prices, claimed soaring charges meant the average Harlow motorist now spends an average of £1,700 a year on fuel.

Speaking after Tuesday's debate, he told the Star: "Even the cheapest petrol station in Harlow is charging 133p per litre. This means Harlow families now pour at least £63m worth of petrol into their cars and vans every year, of which about £40m is tax.

PROTEST: Harlow MP Robert Halfon, centre, with former Top Gear presener Quentin Wilsin, third right, and supporters of the FairFuelUK campaign

"That is the story of Harlow, a town held to ransom by petrol rices. But across the country we see the same tragedy."

He added: "I made the case in the strongest possible terms that there should be no more rises in fuel duty during the rest of this Parliament, a key aim in the FairFuelUK cam-

Mr Halfon also wants the Government to setsup a commission into why fuel prices at the pump are still far too high despite oil falling on the international markets and to examine alternatives to rising fuel duty.

Peter Carroll, of FairFuelUK, said

motorists and businesses were "rightly furious" with soaring pump

"FairFuelUK strongly supports the call by Mr Halfon that the Government should commit to no more rises at all in fuel duty in this Parliament," he added.

"Nearly every MP present at the debate agreed with the call for more transparency in the market so that hard pressed motorists and businesses can see who is taking what out of

PAH apologies to mum for delays and distress

HOSPITAL chiefs have apologised to a mother who complained about the care her 11-year-old autisitic son received after he collapsed at home.

Luke Garratt was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital's emergency department. But his mother, Wendy (47), said he was not seen by an emergency doctor for more than three hours

Luke was diagnosed with suspected Meckel's diverticulum - a bulge in the small intestine - and it was decided to transfer him to a specialist paediatric surgical unit.

However, it was not until a week later that the transfer took place.

After Mrs Garratt complained, the hospital carried out an investigation.

In a letter to Mrs Garratt, PAH trust chief executive Melanie Walker said:

"Unfortunately as the referring hospital we have to rely on the availability of a specialist paediatric surgical bed.

"Discussions were held with the Addenbrooke's team at 6pm when we were advised that there was no on-call paediatric gastroenterology registrar.

"We did not contact a London hospital as Addenbrooke's Hospital was happy to manage his care at Princess Alexandra Hospital."

Mrs Garratt also claimed that she was told the results of a scan would be ready in two hours but she had to wait two days. Luke was finally transferred to Addenbrooke's on April 21, a week after he first attended PAH which has now apologised for the "misunderstanding and distress" caused.

Ms Walker concluded: "As a result of your letter, I have been advised that the head of children's services is going to review how we can escalate situations when there is no bed availability at our specialist centres to try and prevent delays in transfer as you experienced with Luke."

Mrs Garratt, who lives in Ware, said: "It's made me feel disgusted with the NHS. It was serious and he could have died.

"I wasn't kept informed and it's worrying. Luke was lucky but another child might not be so lucky. I wasn't out for compensation, I just don't want this to happen to anybody

A PAH spokeswoman said: "The trust is sorry to hear the Garratt family were not satisfied with the care their son received and we hope our recent correspondence has offered some level of reassurance to the family that we are working to strengthen our own internal processes and practices in view of their experience.

"We recognise that using patient feedback is a useful way of reviewing and improving our care, and we will be using this as a learning opportunity for the whole organisation."

Man faces jail for hitting girlfriend

A MAN convicted of assaulting his girlfriend at their home in Harlow has been warned he faces a prison sentence.

Darryl Taylor (31) was found guilty by a jury at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday of attacking Lisa Trevillion (27) at the couple's former home in Westbury Rise on October 3 last year. He denied the charge.

The court was told that Miss Trevillion, who had only moved to Harlow with Taylor two days earlier, had been taken home by police in the early hours of the morning after getting lost while searching for her new home.

Just 20 minutes later – at around 4.30am – neighbours were woken up by a woman screaming for help.

One neighbour looked out of her window

One neighbour looked out of her window to see Miss Trevillion on a doorstep opposite shouting: "I'm bleeding, I can't believe you hit me."

Prosecutor Adam Budworth said: "The screams were so loud the neighbour could hear them through her double glazed windows."

The jury was told the assault left Miss Trevillion needing five stitches to a head wound.

Taylor, who is now living with his mother at an address in Turnford, had pleaded not guilty to assault causing actual bodily harm.

By COURT REPORTER

star@nertsessexnews.co.uk

Giving evidence, he said his girlfriend was so drunk that they had to get out of a taxi after an evening at a friend's house. He claimed she was "loud and aggressive" and had picked an argument with him.

He claimed that she had later attacked him inside their home and that he had accidentally caught her face when he flailed out with his hand as she punched him on the side of the head.

He continued: "She was screaming 'you hit me, you hit me'. She said she had hurt her head and there was blood coming from "the continued of the continued of th

He said he did not know how she became injured and denied striking her or hitting her head against a wall, telling the court she had made up the accusation.

During the four-day trial the court was told that Miss Trevillion did not support the prosecution.

When interviewed by police she told them: "I don't want him arrested. It's stupid but I'll go back to him because I love him."

Adjourning sentencing until July 1 for reports, judge Karen Walden-Smith told Taylor: "This was a serious assault on your former partner and custody is going to be the outcome."

ITH preparations for Burnt Mill School's 50th birthday bash next year now under way, the Nostalgia desk has received a special request to help hunt down some old faces from the early days.

Assistant head Pat Walker, who found this picture of the school's original teaching team lurking in the school's archives, has asked for as many ex-pupils and staff as possible from the school's first intake in 1962 to get in touch and share their memories.

"Ideally we hope to invite any expupils and teachers from the early days to come in and see how the school has changed in 50 years," he

"It would be great for our current pupils to talk to them and hear all about what they used to get up to during their time at Burnt Mill." Originally opened in March 1962. Burnt Mill Comprehensive started out with 170 children and 22 staff members.

Many of the youngsters, who at the time were described by headmaster Ray Stirling in his memoirs as 'conspicuous by their motley dress of the storm", had moved over from the neighbouring Passmores School, ready to start their learning years in the impressive new establishment.

However, according to Mr Stirling it wasn't until September of the same year that the school was really

"We did our best to become a school in that first term but it was not until September, when concrete and glass were infused with flesh and blood, that I really felt Burnt Mill existed," he wrote

"The staff converged from the four corners of the country and strange dialects stirred the empty classrooms. In the sweat of their brow, as they moved furniture and humped books, they christened the place.

"Wednesday, September 12th 1962 buildings (or part of them), children and staff came together and Burnt Mill Comprehensive was born.'

'She was named after Cyril Hurcomb, the first Baron Hurcomb of Campden Hill in the Royal Borough of Kensington. He was the first chairman of the British Transport Commission from 1948 to

According to Peter Mayby, of Nicholls Tower, the locomotive was the second of BR's Britannia class of Pacific and built in 1951 at Crewe.

"When introduced it did wonders for East Anglian rail services, but was less successful elsewhere," he

Andy Bishop, from Sawridgeworth, added that it had a relatively short

It is fitting the final word should go to Jim Donohue (73), of The Fortunes, Harlow, who worked on the footplate of the train and said the photo brought back many memories.

'The engine was stationed at the time of that photo at Stratford Motive Power where its duties were to take trains out of Liverpool Street to most parts of East Anglia like Norwich," he said

"I lived across the road from the signalman at Burnt Mill, a man by the name of Derek Bignell. We used to have a good laugh at the way I used to hang on the whistle as we came through Burnt Mill at about 80 miles an hour."

A special visitor

GREETINGS: The Countess is introduced to Harlow MP Robert Halfon by the Lord Lieutenant of Essex, Lord Petre (photo: HAR0742945)

THE visit by the Countess of Wessex to St Clare Hospice – the first by a member of the Royal Family – has been declared an outstanding success.

The Countess, who is involved with almost 60 charities in the UK and abroad, met staff, volunteers, patients and their families as she was taken on a tour of the facilties at Hastingwood last Wednesday.

St Clare is celebrating its 21st anniversary and hospice chairman Michael Chapman said they were extremely grateful to the Countess for the visit "in our very special year".

On her arrival she was welcomed by the Lord Lieutenant of Essex and hospice patron Lord Petre and Mr Chapman. She was then introduced to local dignitaries including Harlow MP Robert Halfon, Harlow Council chairman Mike Garnett and chief executive Malcolm Morley.

She was then taken on a tour of the facilities by Tanya Curry, acting chief executive officer and director of care, and was introduced to small groups of staff and volunteers.

Later she spent time with patients and families in both the day therapy unit and the eight-bed inpatient unit. One of the patients the Countess chatted to was inpatient Margaret Rafferty from Harlow, who has a terminal illness.

"I've had a lovely time here," said Margaret. "When I came to the hospice I never expected to meet the Countess of Wessex, who is lovely! I've never met royalty before!"

Margaret told the Countess about the care she has been receiving and even mentioned she had got new pyjamas for the special occasion!

Afterwards, Mr Chapman said:
"It was an absolute pleasure to meet Her Royal Highness and to welcome her to St Clare. This was the hospice's first-ever royal visit and is certainly one which will be remembered in years to come."
Ms Curry added: "The visit was all about Her Royal Highness meeting our patients, families and staff and seeing what fantastic services we are able to offer to the local community.
"Everyone who had the eryone who had the opportunity to meet her was absolutely thrilled. The visit was so important to us as it highlights and confirms the needs for hospice services which provide care and support for patients and their families who are living with a life-limiting illness.

"All patients, staff, and volunteers who met her said how much they had enjoyed doing so and how much interest she showed towards hospice care."

Mr Halfon told the Star: "It was a great honour to meet the Countess of Wessex. The staff and volunteers at St Clare Hospice have worked tirelessly for years to make the hospice what it is today,and they fully deserve royal recognition for their tremendous efforts." Before leaving, the Countess signed the visitors' book and was warmly applauded.

Schoolboy invents a clever doorbell

A SCHOOLBOY stands to pocket himself £250,000 after inventing an ingenious doorbell that tricks would-be burglars into thinking someone is home.

Laurence Rook's Smart Bell device, fitted with a SIM card, calls the householder's mobile phone if no-one answers the door within eight seconds, allowing them to speak directly to whoever is at the door.

The 13-year-old, pictured right, from Croydon in Surrey, has already received orders worth up to £250,000 for the clever gadget which could also be used to deter burglars.

Laurence came up with the idea for the doorbell after his mum missed several important home deliveries while she was

With the help of a family friend, he developed his idea further and entered the device in a competition run by his school after having a prototype built by an electronics firm.

He told reporters: "It started over a year ago when my mum was expecting a parcel to be delivered.

"It was the second or third delivery and instead of leaving a slip saying 'please come to this post office and collect your parcel' I thought 'why don't they call you?'

"From there I thought of the idea of putting a phone inside the doorbell so you can talk to them on a mobile phone.

The Smart Bell is expected to go on sale in DIY shops later this year, priced at around £40.

CHURCH LANGLEY PRIMARY Would-be

astronauts from across Harlow had a blast as they buckled up for a Rocket Challenge at the Church Langley Way school on Thursday.

Scores of Year 4 and 5 pupils from eight of the town's primary schools enjoyed the fun-packed day, learning all about the Apollo missions to the Moon and the science of flight before building their own kites and rockets.

Science subject leader Kate Hughes said: "This was a great way for children to learn more about the science behind rockets and flight while giving them plenty of opportunities for fun and interaction.

"It was a winning combination, because they got so much out of the day while all having a fantastic time. It was wonderful to see the children working together with pupils from other schools on their experiments.

"I'd like to thank Jonathan Forgham and The Primary Works for coming in and helping to run the activities, and Radleys Glassware for providing us with some of the materials we needed. We're very grateful."

STEWARDS Year 7 pupils took a trip through the looking glass to join the Mad Hatter for a cup of tea as they recreated scenes from Lewis Carroll's classic children's novel Alice In Wonderland.

The youngsters created their own hats from card and crepe paper before decorating the table and tucking into their very own tea narty.

Deputy head Marie Erwood said: "The emphasis was on creativity and recreating the scene where Alice joins the Mad Hatter for a cup of tea.

"The pupils really enjoyed themselves using various materials to produce their hats and decorations for the table.

"And to finish off an enjoyable project we had a tea party where the pupils brought in their own food and drink." (s)

FAWBERT & BARNARD'S Childen at the Old Harlow primary joined more than 100,000 youngsters across the UK on a record-breaking march for road safety yesterday (Wednesday) morning. About 150 pupils donned high-visibility jackets before taking part in the Giant Walking Bus, a national road safety awareness event organised by charity Brake. They set off from the school gates at 10am clutching banners and signs reminding motorists of the dangers of speeding and made their way along London Road and up High Street before returning to the school via Chippingfield.

A school spokeswoman said: "London Road can get very busy and many motorists speed along without thinking of the dangers their driving could pose to children heading to and from school.

"This was a fantastic way of raising the road safety awareness of both our pupils and drivers. Hopefully it will mean that those using roads near to the school will now think twice before speeding."

Housing scheme residents enjoy the rewards of working together

A GROUP of residents living in a sheltered housing scheme are leading the way in showing what a united community can achieve.

In the two years since people living in Hallyday House, in Hull Grove, decided to set up a residents' association they have transformed the area.

The group have brought the dilapidated garden back to life and refurbished the common room where they now hold regular social evenings.

Chairman John Thatcher said:
"When you think that there was nothing like this two years ago and how much we have achieved since setting up the residents' association, it really is quite humbling."

"We have a thriving association now and where there wasn't much community activity at all before we have really all come together and worked very hard."

Members of the group, who initially received funding from Harlow Council but now pay for all the work they do themselves, work together to maintain the garden and often organise car boot sales to help top up the account.

"About 90 per cent of the residents who live in the 40 flats here at Halyday are now involved with the association and it has proved to be a really positive thing for people to have in their lives," added John.

"It's ultimately about letting Harlow know that we are still here and what working together can achieve."

Gallery to host rare Mills retrospective

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE Gibberd Gallery in Harlow Civic Centre will be giving art lovers an opportunity to enjoy a rare retrospective of the work of internationallyrenowned sculptor John W. Mills later this month.

Best-known as the man behind 23-ton sculpture The Women Of World War II which stands close to The Cenotaph in Whitehall and the national firefighters memorial Blitz outside St Paul's Cathedral, the London-born artist has had work commissioned by public bodies and private firms since the late 1950s.

Mills has strong ties with Harlow. A friend of town masterplanner Sir Frederick Gibberd, he was also a member of Harlow Art Trust for a number of years and produced two sculptures for the town -Buster Keaton, which stands inside The Playhouse, and Chinese Dynamic which can be seen outside the Tesco store at Church Langley.

The new Harlow show, which opens on June 23, will feature more than 120 sculptures, sketches and pieces of preparatory work covering the artist's career from 1949 to the present day.

It will be the first major Mills retrospective since 1971 and the artist said he was looking forward to exhibiting in a town with such a rich tradition of making art accessible to all.

"There is an outstanding collection of sculpture in Harlow, one of the best in the country, and it really is something for the town

Union honour for arts stalwart Henrietta

A STALWART of the Harlow arts scene has been granted honorary lifetime membership of performers' union Equity in recognition of her tireless work on behalf of actors and dancers across the UK.

Harlow Ballet School tutor Henrietta Branwell was bestowed the honour – the highest awarded by the organisation – after helping to steer the cash-strapped union away from possible bankruptcy. In her voluntary capacity as the Equity Pension Fund's chairman, Henrietta managed to save a staggering £8m, a feat described by union president and acclaimed actor Malcolm Sinclair as "an amazing achievement' Henrietta, who has regularly member of local am-dram group Moot House Players, told the Star: 'The best thing about this was that it was a total surprise.

"Even my husband Michael, who had known about it for weeks, didn't give me the slightest hint about what was going to happen. I've n-ever known him keep a secret for so long in all our married life!"

Michael, who runs Harlow Ballet School in partnership with Henrietta, added: "In these very difficult times for pension funds, Henrietta managed to save the fund – and the union – $8m, the paying of which might well have brought the union close to bankruptcy.

Classroom comedy that fails to make the grade

BAD TEACHER certificate 15, 1h32m

IT is said one inspirational man or woman can make a difference in the classroom.

Robert Donat won the hearts and minds of his young charges as he bade a tearful Goodbye Mr Chips, and Sidney Poitier brought hope back to the unruly streets of the East End of London in To Sir, With Love

And who can forget Robin Williams' performance as he roused the boys in his class to their feet to cheer "O captain, my captain" at the conclusion of Dead Poets Society.

Three cheers, then, for teachers willing to buck the system and put their wayward charges before a stuffy curriculum, regardless of how unpopular it might make them with the staffroom.

However, Jake Kasdan's foul-mouthed comedy won't be winning a gold star alongside those classic school days yarns. Bad Teacher witnesses the devastation wrought by a hard-drinking, moneygrabbing woman who is granted an opportunity to mould the impressionable minds of today's alienated youth.

Elizabeth Halsey (Cameron Diaz) is a booze-addled wreck, draining her drippy, rich boyfriend dry until he finally musters the courage to dump her, forcing her to returns to her teaching job at a high school run by principal Wally Snur (John Michael Higgins). Rebuffing the advances of oafish PE master Russell Gettis (Jason Segel), Elizabeth sets her sights on handsome new teacher Scott Delacorte (Justin Timberlake) who has an expensive watch on his wrist Unthinkably, Scott resists her flirtations and begins a tender romance with the school's prim and proper teacher, Amy Squirrel (Lucy Punch). But Elizabeth is used to getting her own way and declares war on Amy by fair means or, preferably, foul.

Bad Teacher is a morality tale for our fame and power-driven times: succeed at all costs. Alas, effort counts for nothing without a modicum of intelligence and wit, and the gleefully un-PC script is a clutter of mean-spirited barbs and innuendo that leave us to wonder if we're in detention and Kasdan's film is the punishment.

It is a nice idea poorly executed, underpinned by a script with too few laughs and a central heroine whose selfish escapades leave us without a single drop of sympathy or affection.

Diaz is a gifted comic actress but she is on a hiding to nothing here, never quite hitting the target with the lacklustre one-liners.

Punch is more appealing as the victim of Elizabeth's cruelty while Segel and Timberlake vie for their leading lady's affections, the latter poking fun at his Trousersnake tag in the film's obligatory gross-out moment.

Tracey Waples Property Editor

WE'VE all heard it many times but the mantra 'location, location, location' is still worth repeating.

When you're house-hunting, location really is crucial whether or not you're fans of Phil and Kirsty.

It's well worth doing your research and learning about an area before you commit to buy. You may feel you know the local area well, but living in an area is very different to visiting it or just passing through.

Don't make the mistake of falling in love with a home in an unsuitable location. And the term 'unsuitable' covers a multitude of possibilities, not just the planned bypass through your back garden or the nosey neighbours!

How near are the local schools? How long is it going to take you to reach the top of the M11/A10 to commute? Are you close enough to be able to pick up public transport when you need it?

If you've been househunting for a while it can be all too easy to opt for the picture-perfect dream home rather than concentrating on the location. Not only will you soon regret it but if you're thinking of reselling within a few years the poor location is likely to be a sticking point in any sale.

Avoid this problem entirely and only view properties in well-researched locations that are appropriate for you.

Buying a property is an emotional, as well as a practical, decision. If you fail to make a wise choice, your home could be a costly decision you'll soon regret.

Help yourself by ensuring you know what you want, where you want it and at the price you can afford.

Rover Sport is simply the best

By Motoring Correspondent

HE new Range Rover Sport has been revised for 2011 and it's had more than a facelift.

There are some significant changes beneath the skin with a modified, more powerful, more efficient turbo-diesel engine.

There are two improved engines on offer, including a 3.0-litre TDV6 diesel and a range-topping 5.0-litre supercharged V8 which generates 503bhp and can make 0 62mph in five seconds.

When a car is labelled 'Sport' it's no longer the case that it's all about performance. The new engines not only boast substantial increases in power and torque but also lower emissions and reduced fuel consumption.

Changes to the chassis include active damping and a full Brembo brake system that does a great job of bringing the burly Range Rover to a quick stop.

Taking all that was good about the mighty Range Rover and, through the work of the designers, presenting a slightly more youthful appearance, it sought to tempt buvers away from rival offerings that were perceived to be more contemporary in looks and

It's also appropriate that the car's visual appearance has changed slightly. Call it a nip and tuck if you like, the Sport's nose has been softened. Gone is the stark bumper arrangement. LED with a smoked-effect finish at the back and subtle daytime

These details all amount to a sleeker, less fussy and more sophisticated look and one that does much to help promote Land Rover's desire to be viewed as a smart, fashionable brand.

the focus very much on improving the car's premium

Gone is the dark plastic centre console and in its ordinated central fascia. There' upgraded leather on the seats. soft-touch textiles and an array of electronic equipment including the adoption of a TFT colour screen.

Other new toys include five cameras to assist with parking which provide a 360-degree view of the car when reversing.

There's also a system that detects oncoming cars and dips the headlights for you, a clever multimedia system with screens for back seat passengers and heated and cooled seats all round. Indeed, the Sport's cabin is now on a par with that of a conventional executive saloon. It's certainly spacious enough while the Sport's trump card lofty driving position – will likely be a deal-clincher for some.

Of course one pretty important reason to get the Sport over any conventional saloon is its allweather and all-terrain ability. For some the latter will rarely be exploited, yet the underlying ability is nothing short of breathtaking.

It's helped in no small way by the TDV6 motor that's destined to grab all the headlines

The flagship TDV8 might offer lots of power and torque, but the TDV6 delivers an experience that might be close enough for some. Punchy when it comes to overtaking and powering out of corners yet quiet on the motorway, this new TDV6 puts the lesser diesel Sport back on

Of course all this power makes off-roading a breeze. The smooth auto gearbox makes life inching over obstacles easy enough for novices to feel confident, while the various electronic aids help take your mind of the complicated stuff and allows you to concentrate on the muddy track ahead.

Land Rover's now familiar Terrain Response system really does make off-roading a doddle. Simply dial up the terrain - mud, snow, sand etc – and transmission, differential and suspension settings are taken care of and adjusted when necessary. It's no wonder the car is popular when off-roading is made this civilised.

And that's certainly a good way to sum up the Range Rover Sport: civilised. With the premium ambience ratcheted up a few more notches and the car's already peerless off-roading given a further polish, you don't need to look anywhere else as nothing

And highlighting the youthful angle is appropriate considering

athletics

INDEFATIGABLE Athletic Club member Dave Bauer braved the cold and wet to come 4th in his age group at the British Masters Pentathlon Championships.

Sunday's event in Milton Keynes, Buckinghamshire, was marred by continuous rain.

There were five events and athletes picked up points for each

Each competitor had three throws per event and Bauer threw the hammer 29.72m.

His shot put effort measured 9.62m, while in the discus he threw 36.11m.

The heavy hammer is 35lb as opposed to the normal weight of

Bauer came 4th in the men's 45 age group with 2,720 points.

Bauer, from Harlow, said:
"Everybody's distances were down, obviously limited by the atrocious weather!

"I won't be doing one of these again as I hurt my elbow further as I should not be touching a iavelin. I never learn!"

Bauer is next set to compete in ne British Masters Championships at Alexander Stadium in Birmingham from June 25-26.

In a cage!

Kirby's coming back!

Former Hawks boss returns in playing role

DANNY Chapman has boosted By DAVID RIMMER his Hawks squad with the sign- david.rimmer@hertsessexnews.co.uk ing of experienced central defender and former Harlow Town manager Ryan Kirby.

It will be Kirby's third spell at the club and he will still keep his fulltime job with the Academy side at Boreham Wood from Monday to

He will quit his role as Boreham Wood reserve team manager. Kirby's first spell at Harlow saw him Kirby's first spell at Harlow saw nim win two Player of the Year awards for the 2002-03 and 2003-04 seasons.

His outstanding positional play and anticipation skills showed that he had played at a higher level and Aldershot and Doncaster Rovers were part of his Kirby (36) then left Harlow before rejoining the club during the second part of the 2005-06 campaign.

The following season saw the club move to Barrows Farm and Kirby took on the role of player-manager.

Harlow got promoted from Ryman League division one north at the end of the 2006-07 season.

After beating the drop in the premier division the following season, Kirby then led Harlow to the first round of the FA Cup before they were beaten 2-0 at home by Macclesfield Town in front of a crowd of more than 2,200 in early November

However, Harlow's league form nosedived and Kirby was harshly sacked shortly before Christmas by then chairman Simon Morgan.

Hawks boss Chapman said: "He wants to play and he wants a break from managing [Boreham Wood reserves]. He has signed just as a player.

"He keeps himself in good shape. He reads the game well and is strong."

He added: "We have been good friends. I trust Ryan 100 per cent. If he did not think he could do it he would tell me. He will give me his support as much as I gave him [when HTFC manager]."

Chapman indicated the use of three centre-halves in a 3-5-2 system could be we did not have the time to look into it when I took over [in January]," said the Hawks boss.

Jon Docker from Grays Athletic.
"We have agreed a deal. He is the best technical player in this league," he claimed. "His best role is as an attacking midfielder and he can play on the left or

Chapman said that centre-half Chris Sargent is also coming for a pre-season trial. Sargent played for Ware last term after appearing for Bishop's Stortford the previous season

Chapman "Chris impressed when he played for Ware against us last season but we want to see more of him.

Hosts lose in Proudlock Cup 20-20 final

HARLOW Town suffered defeat in the final of the Proudlock Cup.

Four teams competed in the 20/20 tournament at Town's Ash Tree Fields home on Sunday.

It was certainly a colourful affair, as the Town side adorned a bright kit, while there were blue wickets and even a pink ball.

By contrast, the weather was terrible and the final between the host club and Dunmow was reduced to 15 overs per side.

Dunmow were asked to bat first and got off to a decent start as the top order all chipped in and left plenty of wickets in hand for the last couple of overs.

James Reid took advantage in the last over as he smashed 22 from it as Dunmow posted 121-5.

The Harlow reply never got going as Dunmow picked up early wickets, including a direct hit run out from the boundary. James Hayter top scored with 27 runs for the hosts.

Pressure was exerted through tight bowling Josh Down and Town finished on 75-7 to give Dunmow a 46-run win and the cup.

In their last four match, Dunmow bowled poorly and concede 24 extras allowing Abridge to post a very competitive score of 147-7.

Chris Barker (40) and Down (33) got Dunmow off to a good start but a mid-order collapse looked to have Dunmow in trouble.

However, a good partnership and good running between the Bush (28 not out) and Nick Coupe guided Dunmow (148-7) home by three wickets and an over to spare.

In the other semi-final, Harlow Town beat Birchanger.

Harlow Town scored 158 for 3 from 20 overs. Charlie Coleman top scored with 60. Karl Seecharan hit 34 not out and Ashley Alderson bagged 32 runs. Birchanger scored 110 for 8 from 20 overs (Matt Hurley 25, Elliot 28). The event raised £600 for Breakthrough Breast

She was followed home by Saffron Walden Striders' Fiona Halls (19:57) and Janet Lipsilk (20.31).

Louise combined with Sharon Wright (6th, 21:46) and Paula Reynolds (7th, 21.48 PB) to win the team prize for Harlow.

Herts & Essex Cricket League, division one

IN a dramatic climax, Harlow Town missed out on notching a sixth win in seven matches when batsman Dan Calver was out with just one run needed for victory.

Town were tied with hosts Newport and had one wicket in hand when Calver was bowled.

The 13 points, rather than 26 accrued for a win, meant Vic Goddard's men lost the lead in division one to Theydon Bois.

Calver had been the unlikely hero with His 96 ninth-wicket partnership with Ron Yates (36 not out) had put Town on

Track star's GB medals furore

Athlete claims she was placed in 'wrong' disability category

By DAVID RIMMER david.rimmer@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FUMING Great Britain track star Anne Wafula Strike claims she has been robbed of five years of winning a multitude of medals in disabled athletics - and forced to compete outside the section containing legendary sports-woman Dame Tanni Grey-Thompson.

The 42 year-old, from Willowfield in Harlow, was ordered to pull out of a top competition in 2006 when the International Paralympic Commission (IPC) reclassified her disability.

Strike, who is paralysed from the chest down, had previously competed in the T53 category until 2006.

She was subsequently put into the T54 category, a grouping for athletes with functioning abdomens.

She said: "I have been racing in the wrong class since 2006. I have missed out. Goodness knows what I could have done in

"I love the sport so much even though I have been put in a more difficult category."

Strike and Dame Tanni had reached the 100m final of the T53 class at the Paralympic World Cup in 2006, but before this the Harlow competitor was subjected to a reclassification.

She was asked to do sit-ups and stand up but could do neither.

Nevertheless the IPC placed her in the T54 category.

Strike's reclassification came after Dame Tanni's husband, Ian Thompson, allegedly suggested Strike was more physically able than she appeared.

In an article in the Sunday Times, it was alleged that Thompson had claimed in private to UK Athletics officials that Strike showed too much body movement for her supposed level of disability and should not be allowed to compete in the same category as his wife.

Thompson, then the wheelchair event co-ordinator for UK Athletics, had insisted he did so to ensure a 'level playing field'.

Thompson was quoted in the Sunday Times alleging: "I'd had a discussion with the head coach and said 'You need to look at this because if you look at the way in which Anne is now starting she is using a lot more body function than one would expect from a T53'." Thompson insisted he had never believed Wafula Strike had been guilty of cheating.

Subsequently, Wafula Strike failed to make the Great Britain team for the Beijing Paralympic Games in 2008.

A UK Athletics (UKA) spokeswoman spoke to the Star yesterday (Wednesday) and outlined the current position regarding Wafula Strike.

She said Wafula Strike would need to launch a formal protest about her classification three months before an IPC classifi-cation panel was due to meet to consider changing her disability level.

"This is standard IPC procedure for cases such as this, and unfortunately there is no method to fast-track a classification

"Unfortunately for Anne, with the three month deadline in mind, there is very little in the way of classification opportunities left globally in 2011.

"UKA has offered to support Anne with any protest by drawing up and submitting the relevant paperwork for her, should a suitable classification opportunity present itself in 2011 or 2012 [in time for the London Paralympic Games]."
The IPC could then consider switching her to T53, the level at which Dame Tanni dominated, winning scores of medals at various Paralympic Games.

Wafula Strike plans to do this and hopes to represent Great Britain in the London Paralympics in the T53 section – although she will be 43 years-old!

Luke Heskett's side lead division two by 31 points after they registered a resounding home win over Horndon-on-the-Hill on Saturday.

The visitors batted first and were never allowed to get away in the face of some excellent bowling from the Harlow seamers.

They were aided by an excellent run out of dangerous opener Mike Canavan by Nicky Baxter for just 1.

The scoring rate was below three runs an over for the majority of the innings, with Andrew McGarry (2-25 from 13 overs) giving them nothing to hit.

Horndon's hopes of a decent score were ended by some good bowling at the end of the innings by Ahmed Khawaja and Luke Monger.

They took the last four wickets for just five runs, leaving Horndon all out for 161 in 47 overs.

Harlow's other wicket takers were Khawaja (3-21), Monger (2-28), Baxter (1-16) and Haris Afridi (1-
